STEPHANEE PINKNEY

With a remarkable ability to connect with leaders, Stephanie Pinkney is the leadership coach you've been seeking.

Passionate about empowering female leaders, Stephanie equips them with the tools to prioritize effective communication, overcome the challenges of heroism, and establish boundaries that foster a positive team culture. Her approach not only transforms workplaces but also enriches everyday life. Having worn many hats herself, Stephanie understands the struggle of juggling multiple responsibilities, facing health challenges, and battling burnout while striving to improve team efficiency.

"Many times, as leaders, we don't realize how much our work environment follows us home and impacts our mental and physical health," Stephanie explains. "My goal is to empower leaders to take control of their well-being, making them more effective in helping others." Stephanie's mission is clear: to change the world, one leader at a time.

With over 20 years of experience in leadership roles across both ministry and corporate sectors, Stephanie has honed her expertise. She holds a degree in Business and is a certified Personal and Executive Coach, having earned her credentials from the ICF-accredited Capp Institute in Atlanta, GA.

In her coaching, Stephanie emphasizes the importance of servant leadership. She teaches leaders to be vulnerable with their teams, communicate expectations effectively, and set boundaries to prevent burnout. By fostering personal and team growth, she believes that leaders can reach their full potential—both at home and in the marketplace.
